1. According to a Rumanian officer (field grade) presently on active duty, a large number of Soviet officers, wearing Rumanian uniforms and speaking the Rumanian language more or less well, now occupy posts of command in the Rumanian armed forces. These Soviet officers are described as usually of Ukrainian or Bessarabian origin.
2. A Rumanian official [REDACTED] has stated that schools for the instruction of Soviet officers and civilian functionaries in the Rumanian language presently exist in Moscow.
3. At the present time a plan to require high officials of the Rumanian Government to study the Russian language, and to require certain other government functionaries to learn that language as prerequisite for holding their positions is under consideration.
